made such a procedure extremely dangerous. The captain called out to them to desert, but they went over the side, disappeared, and were never seen again. Only eleven hands all told remained on the ship, and they at once set to work throwing all the cargo overboard. This work went on vigorously until about 5 o'clock, when a little outside interest was evinced by the appearance of a large white steamer, not far from the ship, passing to the northward. The engine, up and down, was hoisted on the foremast-head; and between the masts, the signal "want assistance" was hoisted; distress rockets were fired, but the steamer took no notice and continued her course. At about 11 o'clock one of the ship's boats was seen to be making back to the ship, and sure enough, she came alongside. The captain at once took command and put all hands, including the passengers, on to the work of jettisoning cargo and baling out the water, as the pumps being choked could not be worked. There were two Chinese passengers amongst those who returned in the boat, and when they saw what was to be done, they simply refused to assist and, pulling out their knives, they made for the boat again. Great trouble was experienced in keeping these two men in order, and it was only after some measures had been taken that they were subdued. The other people worked hard. At 6 o'clock in the evening there were four feet of water in the hold. All hands then came up from below and started baling out the water, which work was continued until 9 o'clock, when the water was still gaining on their efforts. Seeing that it was impossible to keep the ship afloat, and that she gradually was going down by the bow, the captain ordered the people to go on to the remaining boat. A big sea was running, and four hands were kept continually at work baling out the boat. Two Chinese passengers lashed together a small stage and went off on this. Three Chinese passengers refused to leave the ship as they contended that the boat was already too full. At half-past 10 o'clock on the morning of the 21st July the boat put off from the ship, which was then level with the water. Four hours later, nothing could be seen of the ship, and there is no doubt that she foundered. The captain hoisted blankets for sails, as, owing to the crowding, only two or three could be manipulated in the boat. The two Chinese again became obstreperous, threateningly brandishing their knives, and asked that the boat be headed for some place where they desired to land. The captain had to have recourse to his revolver which tended to bring these recalcitrant men to order. For two whole days these unfortunate people drifted about in the open boat and the privations which they suffered under a severe tropical sun were very severe. The captain and the chief engineer were the only Europeans amongst the number, and naturally their lot must have been far harder than the Asiatics who are at least better able to stand the blazing heat of the sun. Both men are now at the Sailors' Home. Nothing is known of the other boat and it is feared that she is lost. —Strait Times.

CALCUTTA, July 3rd.
Persistent reports are current of a Russian movement across the Altai range in the direction of Shiguan on the Upper Orus near the Amur of Cebu as part of his territories, and of a Russian detachment being at Irkutsk in the neighbourhood of the Amur. Whatever truth there is in the rumours it is certain that a Russian officer crossed the frontier and founded the Kila Nao rising lately suppressed by the Amur of Cebu. The Russian authorities, according to their custom, have discovered his action, and apologized to the Amur. There are also rumours of an impending mobilization of Indian troops on the North-West frontier; these have no foundation, beyond the fact that the Government of India has sanctioned the construction of a Railway Station on the Khamma plain outside Rawal Pindie which would facilitate concentration, as a matter of permanent arrangement, all departments of the Army, Commissariat, Ordnance, Stores, and Railway. Amurs are always ready to move up at a moment's notice on receipt of the word "mobilize" from the Viceroy.

July 4th.
The Government of India has intimated to the Amur of Afghanistan that if there be any more disturbances between his troops and those of Umrao Khan of Bajaur, it will insist on the immediate withdrawal of his forces from Amur. A similar warning has been sent to Ghulam Hyder.
